Congress has now fired off its most troublesome Cannon. - Chicago Journal. And in the explosion the Cannon was "busted."

A defective sidewalk at Fort Howard injured one J. L. Wright, of that city, and he brought suit, and has just received $2,720.83 as damages.

Financially, Dr. J. P. Newman's church in New York, is a success. The crowd that has flocked around Dr. Newman were determined to have eloquence and The Arizona Indians Create a full treasury, if nothing more.

Governor Rusk and Attorney General Frisby went to Oshkosh on Thursday being summoned there by the citizens who are greatly alarmed at the rapid rise of the water of Lake Winnebago and Fox river.

Mr. Hazelton, member of Congress from the Third district, will be a candidate for renomination next fall. He has given a newspaper reporter authority to announce that he will be a candidate and that he thinks the new district with Dane county added, will be stronger for him than before.

The spirit of the devil seems to be in the floods and storms of this spring. For two months or more, it has been a season of continued storms. In the South the floods have devastated the country for hundreds of miles. The homes of thousands of people have been swept a way. Lives have been lost. Their been drowned, and stock has bave ruined. In that section of the country it will take millions of dollars to replace these homes, to say nothing about the ravages that death has made. In other parts of the country, high water, tornadoes and cyclones have raged with demonlike fury. Within the last two weeks, no less than fifteen cyclones have visited the country, and not only Tom Newland and wife, McMurren and bridges been hurled to destruction, but a ties. whole village has been wiped out of being. This section of the country has results of mad tornadoes.

The Congressional committee have made a report on the question of auditing the expenses of the illness and death of President Garfield. The committee agree to pay Mrs. Garfield $50,000, less the amount paid to the President on account of his salary. The other items which the majority of the committe report in favor of paying, are as follows:

That Dr. Bliss should be allowed $25,-000, can hardly be called less than an outrage. He was a sort of a self-appointed physician, and assumed the responsible position without the consent of Mrs. Garfield or the endorsement of the wounded President. He did not display skill in treating the

Charles Darwin, the great English scientist, is dead. He died in London on Thursday afternoon, in his 73d year. He was one of the most remarkable men of his time. He not only had high scholarly attainments, but he had a great mind after the fashion of Dr. Thomas Young, and worked in the fields of science where few dared to tread. He was a close student from early life, and began his sci- lapse Tuesday, and never rallied. Darentific investigations in a most thorough manner when he was only 22 years old. He wrote many books, but his first to make a sensation, and which showed remarkable genius, was the "Origin of species by means of natural selection." It had an enormous sale, and was translated into French, German, Italian and Dutch. The book made him famous throughout the world, and honors were showered upon him by all the academies of Europe. In this book he did not claim that man once inhabited the jungles as a monkey, but he did claim that man has always existed as man, but his species has improved as the demands were made upon him, until he gradually, through succeeding ages, developed from a lower to a higher plane. But in his last work upon that subject, "The Descent of Man and Selection in Relation to Sex," published in 1871, Mr. Darwin took the ground that man descended from a hairy quadruped, furnished with a tail, pointed ears, and arboreal in his habits. The work provoked much criticism on one hand, while on the other it was regarded as one of the profoundest works of modern times. In whatever light the world may view his position in regard to the origin of species, he will stand in the foremost rank of the great scientists of London, April 20.-Charles Robert Darwin, the well-known scientist, is dead. He had been ill some days, and was supposed to be recovering, but he had a rewin suffered for some time from a weakness of the heart, but continued to work to the last. He was taken ill Tuesday night with pains in the chest, faintness and nausea. The nausea lasted more or less during Wednesday, and culminated in his death in the afternoon. Darwin remained fully conscious until within quarter of an hour of his death.

SUICIDE.

AHNAPEE, Wis., April 20.—Great excitement was caused in the city by the news that the body of Mrs. John Gettinger, who resided about three miles up the river from here, had been found in the river near her home. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict of accidental drowning, but it is generally believed to be a case of suicide, she having been under bonds to appear at the May term of court in this county to stand trial as an accomplice in the murder of her husband.

THE TABORS.

DENVER Col., April 50.-Concerning the Tabor case, the Tribune editorality says: "Our sympathies in such a case is always with the man. This may be ungallant, but it is true Mrs. Tabor cannot be starving, because only two years ago her husband gave her $100,000. The ct that she attempted to procure a pubnication of the details of the plea at the time, that a few people whose acquaintance with Governor Pitkin was limited, believed that Mr. Tabor had a chance to be appointed to the United States Senate, is against her. The fact that she wanted the publication made at any time is against her. A debt of love cannot be paid with money; a debt of devotion cannot be liquidated with shame. As men go and compensations go and the world goes, it seems to us that he acted very fairly in the matter. When beyond the reach of the finger of want she publishes to the world that which is bad enough in itself. A 'much worse and much worse' in the mouth of the community, and the object aimed at is money. She makes a mistake, we take it, that in this case the sympathies of a public which does not understand the unwritten story will be with the woman. This is quite natural, and more so as Governor Tabor has not the qualities which excite sym pathy. He is not a man which society hungers for, but he has some kind and generous traits which have their value, even though they be under an uncouth mask. When the chapters are told from first to last it may be discovered that he has been as much sinned against as sin-

FIRE.

Peoria, Ill., April 20.—The Vienna flouring mill, owned by George H. Cox, was almost entirely destroyed by fire this evening. The loss is estimated at $40,-000; insurance, $17,000. The walls are still standing and may possibly be utilized in rebuilding, but the machinery is a total loss. A large quantity of flour was also consumed. The fire originated in the smut-room on the upper floor. Chief Morton was slightly injured by a collision between a chemical engine and a hose-cart.

nachinist to a Chronicle reporter, "why, slavery is too good a name for the labor system in the Hawaiian Islands. I went on the plantations," continued the machinist, "and from what I have seen I quite agree with the old negro who told me one night at Naalehu, 'I've worked in Louisiana in the worst days and I never struck any slavery like what we! have on this plantation." In the majority of places, according to the machin-ist's description, each laborer is given a room about six by eight feet to lodge in, and this apartment has to answer all the requirements of single or married life. In many cases the machinist sawa family of six white people living in one small room, with a shameless disregard for all vid of the wages for that day. If resent the imposition he is dragged is fore the native officer of the law, who is halfellow well met with the planter, and is fined. The system of fines is in fact the most advantageous to the flintyhearted overseer, for by judiciously us-ing the machinery of the law he can keep the bondman more securely in his power. The law prevents them from leaving the service of the planter while they are indebted to him, and the imposition of a few heavy fines prolongs their slavery for years.

The food given to the bondman is not so bad in quality as disgusting in the manner in which it is cooked and served. The Chin men and the South Sea Islanders do their own cooking. The white slaves depend on a Chinese cook, who is the servant of the plantation and end av rs to express through his pots and pans the sinister disregard of the overseer and the planter. The machinist described the food furnished him and otner artisans at various plantations as disgusting: "It doesn't take the poor fellows long to become demoralized, and then they are booked for good. The sale of liquors is forbidden on the islands, but the odd dollars the poor slaves get soon go in drink. That's how the Chinese grow rich by selling rice brandy. The drink and the slavery make them all one -negroes, Chinamen, South Sea Islanders, Kanakas and whites. If ever there was a hell on earth, it's on some of these plantations I've seen .- San Francisco Chronicle.

Every day we see that some new evenue has been opened to woman by which they may obtain a livelihood, and all of us who love women, and most men do, are glad of it, though we may be opposed to female suffrage. For there is such a thing as carring it too far, and allowing women to engage in branches of business for which they are not fitted. We see by the papers that a woman has been arrested as a burglar.

To think of women going about nights with a jimmy and a dark lantern, opening doors and windows, and sneaking about rooms, is degrading. If a male burglar gets into your house, and he is discovered, you can shoot him, if you get the drop on him, or kick him down stairs, but who wants to shoot a female burglar, or kick her over the bannisters? You would almost rather let her go ahead and burgle, and go away with your roll of money, than to shoot her. Beside, you could not hit her with a bullet from an ordinary pistol in a vital part. The heart and other vital organs are covered with bullet-proof corsets, liver and lung pads, porus plasters, etc. You take a corset and tie it around a sack of flour, and try to fire a bullet through it, and you will find that the bullet will fall to the ground. A liver pad is as good as boiler iron to protect the form, so you see there is no place to shoot a female burglar, except in the head, and no gentleman would want to shoot a beautiful woman in the face, and with a long dress on, he might as well shut his eyes and shoot at a hop yard, and expect to hit a pole, as to expect to hit a leg. Then, again, the natural gallantry of a man would prevent his men, should wake up in the night and see a woman burglar feeling in his Oriental pants, rifling the pockets, or rummaging the drawers of the bureau, he would lay still and let her burgle as long as she would keep still and not wake up his wife. Were it a male burglar, he would jump up, regardless of his nocturnal costume, and tell him to get out of there, but he would hesitate to get up before a female burglar and ask her to make herself scarce, on the ground that she was too plenty. He would not feel like accosting the female burglar without an introduction. If he spoke to her familiarly, she would be justified in being indignant, and turn her back upon him, and say she was insulted. It places a man of gallantry in a very embarrassing situation to have a female burglar rob his house, because he would be no gentleman if he did not offer to see her safe home. No true gentleman would like to see a female burglar go home alone at three o'clock in the morning, and while he might feel the loss of his property, it would be courtesy for him to offer to see her home, and help carry the swag. Peck's Sun.

Mothers and nurses cannot be too careful about the soap they use on the little ones. But few physicians know how many of the so-called skin diseases among the children are caused by the use of adulterated, poisonous soap. An analysis of several cakes of the pretty and perfumed toilet soaps that are sold on the streets showed the presence of ground glass, soluble glass, silex, pipe clay, rotten stone, borax, plaster of Paris, tin crystal, magnesia, pumice stone, oat meal, and other substances, which are added to give the soap weight, hardness, roughness or clearness. The common colorings are vermilion, Venetian red and carmine, ultramarine green, popigment green, copperas, Spanish brown, ultramarine blues, yellow and scarlet anilines and burnt umber. Many of the perfuming ingredients though harmless in themselves, become chemically poisonous by admixture. Adding the dangers from all these to the rancid, diseased, putrid qualities of grease used, and mothers may well be appalled at the permanent evils these neat looking, delicately scented blocks contain, ready to be released whenever moistened and applied to the baby's body.

"Give examples," said an old back number on the board of examiners, addressing the ensign, "of different degrees and velocities of motion." "Well," the ensign said, "the swiftest motion is that of light, and the slowest, by several hundred degrees, is promotion." They sent him back two years. "That, young man," the examiners told him, "gives you an idea of retrogressive motion.-Burlington Hawkeye.

Timber Supply of Europe.

Some statistical statements recently published with reference to the timber production and supply of Europe indi-cate that wasteful recklessness has prevailed in nearly all the continental countries for years. It is stated that there is scarcely any oak timber left in Sweden or Norway, and the pine woods are being fast thinned out, the people being al-ready obliged to buy such of their wood elsewhere. The forest era of Russia along the Baltic and in the southern provinces has been largely reduced, and occupies only about one-tenth of the whole. Austria-Hungary has still 43,-000,000 acres of forest, and a conservative and productive system of dealing with the timber supply has been in force there for nine years. Most of the timber now used in Austria is imported from Bosnia and Montenegre; Servia and Roumania have fine forests; Italy has 14,000,000 acres of timber, most of it-in the mountains and difficult of access, Spain has only 8,500,000 acres left, and these mostly in the mountains; Portugal has 1,000,000, but does a heavy timber business. In Germany the forests are carefully husbanded, and their area annually increased by planting, $500,000 being appropriated every year by the government for that purpose. The German empire has now about 34,000,000 acres of forest, valued at $400,000,000, and producing a yearly income of nearly $50,000,000 by the sale of timber, carefully selected with a view to inflicting no injury upon the forests. The German exports of timber are about 2,000,000 tons less than the imports annually.

Forming a Stock Company.

A New Jersey miller who had become old and rheumatic, one day called his sons about him and said:

"Boys, I am growing stiff in the knees and faint at heart. My liver is out of order, and I can no longer dis-tinguish between a peck and a half bushel when taking toll. This mill is worth $10,000. In order to form a stock company and render my own burdens the lighter, I shall give Reuben two-tenths, Samuel the same, and Charles Henry, who is my first born, three-tenths. Bless you, my children, bless you, You may now go fishing for half a day.

The three sons took the papers which the old man had made out, and instead of going a-fishing, they went down to a lawyer's office, called a meeting of the stockholders and proceeded to business. The first-born was elected President, Reuben Treasurer and Samuel Secretary, and the following resolution

People who light their pipes, cigars or lamps, or kindle their fires by the instantaneous ignition of friction matches, have, unless they are old people, very little conception of the labor and tribstrength of body and freshness of mind ulation attendant upon the same to the simplicity of his habits and the process fifty years ago. Every wellregulated family, at that time, was provided with a tin box of tinder, produced by the combustion of rags, and a flint and steel, and matches which had been dipped into brimstone. When fire was wanted the flint and steel and tinder were produced, and the tinder being ignited by sparks precipitated from the steel by means of the flint, a match can Minister at Washington, says that was touched to the burning mass, and, being lighted, was applied to some prepared kindling, and a fire thus produced, the whole process occupying from five to fifteen minutes, according to the skill or luck of the operator. This was attended with so much labor, and productive of the use of so many naughty words on the part of the person operating, that fires were generally kept all night. This was done—there were few stoves, and hard coal had not come into very general use then—by covering the huge and blazing back-log in the fire-place with ashes, and in the has a nice in Portland, Me., whom he is in the fire-place with ashes, and in the ties at morning there was generally found in its place a bed of live coals, which, by that city for some time, her singing the application of fresh wood, and with giving great satisfaction. The Governor | the aid of the then universal bellows, will send her abroad after a course in usually produced a blazing fire in from Portland. She is said to have a fine fifteen minutes to half an hour, Somecontralto voice, and has received com- times, however, from some cause, the pliments from Annie Louise Cary, which | back-log would be wholly consumed, induced the Governor to promise to give | leaving nothing but a bed of ashes. In this case, particularly if there was an absence of dry kindling in the house, some member of the family must take the shovel, and oftentimes through snow knee-deep, trudge to the nearest neighbor's, "after fire." And sometimes, indeed, the nearest neighbor's fire would be out, too, in which case the walk would have to be extended till the fire was procured. The live coals were borne home upon the hand to prevent blowing off, placed between two brands, the bellows set vigorously at work, and the fire thus set a-blazing. In lighting a candle, a live coal was taken up with a pair of tongs and blown upon with the mouth until a blaze was produced. Pipes were lighted by placing a live coal on top of the tobacco, and cigars by holding the burning coal to the end and pulling with all one's might.

The first improvement on this in New England was the substitution of a bottle of phosphorus, into which, the cork being removed, a brimstone match was thrust, and being thus ignited the bottle was quickly closed in order to retain the strength of the liquid. This was such an emancipation from the thralldom of the tinder-box and flint and steel, and Grain the other inconveniences of the old method, that people rejoiced greatly, direction had been reached, and every well-regulated family was provided with its bottle of phosphorus, while the flint and steel and tinder-box were laid aside to be used only in cases of emergency. This invention was known by the name of "loco-foco matches." Directly, however, there was another invention, that left the phosphorus bottle as much in the shade as the other had the flint and steel. This was the application of a preparation of phosphorous and brimstone to the tips of matches, which only required to be drawn between the folded leaves of a piece of sand-paper to produce a light, so that the smoker had only to carry his matches in one vest pocket and his folded paper in the other to light his pipe at any moment. These latter were known as "Lucifer matches," as partaking, it is presumed, of the character of the Scriptural "son of the morning." But the spirit of invention was not satisfied to stop here, and the result was, the present world-used friction matches, that serve all people, and the making of which, at the present time, in all probability consumes almost as much wood as there was burned by the whole United States, for all the purposes of warming and cooking, a century ago. - Provi-

A Wonderful Bridge.

A remarkable bridge is now in course of construction over Kinzina Creek, near Bradford, Pa., on the line of the New York, Lake Erie & Western Railway. The structure has a total length of 2,051 feet from abutment to abutment, and the height of the rail above the bed of the creek is 301 feet. It consists of one span 62 feet long, twenty spans 61 feet each, and twenty spans 38 feet 6 inches each. The trusses, which extend the whole length, are 6 feet high and 10 feet apart, made similar to those of the elevated railroads, and are known as the lattice girder. The spread of the posts at the highest point is 104½ feet, being about one-third of the height, which gives base and stability to the structure, and prevents any vibration or lateral motion. The bridge will be, it is said, the highest railroad bridge in the world. It is 60 feet higher than Niagara suspension bridge, 170 feet higher than the great bridge across the Ohio at Cincin-nati, 189 feet above High bridge, and 45 feet higher than Portage railroad bridge over the Genesee River. The bridge will consume 40,000,000 pounds of iron, and will require 30,000 yards of masonry. The cost will be over $500,000.

Collecting Ivy Roots.

There is an industry in the mountains of Western North Carolina and East Tennessee that is perhaps known to but few, and is probably found in but few sections of this country, viz .: The collection of ivy roots. The roots are shipped to this city and Boston, where they are used for making door knobs and pipe bowls. They are found principally along the line of the Cranberry Branch Railroad and in the vicinity of Rome Mountain, where they grow in great abundance and attain an enormous size. Our informant states that recently a root weighing 800 pounds was dug from the ground and shipped to market. This is supposed to be the largest ivy root ever found, but roots weighing from seventy-five to 150 pounds are frequently found. The collection of these roots has grown into quite an industry, and a large number of poor farmers are thus engaged and make a fair livelihood. There is a constant demand for the roots, and good prices are paid for them by the ton. The wood is said to be very valuable for the purposes for which it is used.—Philadelphia Star.

"Oh, yes, Fred; I know what you are theirs ever lived. No. Fred; as a lover you are just perfect, and I hate awfully to give you up. Still, if you are bent on marrying, there are plenty of girls who have not got married sisters, or who are not wise enough to profit by their about me, for I've no doubt I can find some one to fill your place-' But before Lizzie had concluded, Fred made for the door, muttering something 'unmentionable to ears polite.'

"There!" exclaimed Lizzie, as the door closed with a bang, "I knew he was no better than the rest. That's the way John and Aleck swear and slam doors when things don't go just right. He'd make a bear of a husband: but I am sorry he came to the point so soon, for he was just a splendid beau."

A Weak Point in Fire Insurance.

Here is the weak point in fire insurance, contained in a nutshell: The willingness to issue a policy before a fire without protecting the company, and then trying to protect the company after the fire by harrassing the policy-holder. The time for a company to protect itself is b. fore it issues a policy-the same as a merchant does before he sells a bill of goods. When a man applies for credit at any well-regulated store, his standing and reliability are looked after before credit is granted. So should it be in fire insurance. When a man desires a policy, his standing and responsibility should be known before a policy is granted, and the value of the goods insured fully understood to be enough to cover the face of the policy, the same as a collateral is expected to be large enough to cover the amount of a good loan. But in the unseemly competition to issue policies, risks are not carefully selected, and the result is that in case of fire all claims are liable to be contested, in which event the innocent are generally the sufferers, while rogues and

The Pleasures of Business.

No human mind is contented without occupation. No human soul is without an aim or purpose in life. The greatest success in life consists not in the mere accumulation of riches, but in being able to acquire wealth with a disposition to apply it in such a manner that it shall time that if he should lose his pony, he be a comfort and blessing to others—not would lose his equilibrium; because, as in the mere giving away of money, but he explained to an awe-stricken Freshin putting people in a way to labor and man, "the word comes from equus and grinding and exacting gold from the poor; but there is a great deal of genuine satisfaction in being able to effer steady and honorable employment to the many willing hands that have nothing to do. One of the greatest enjoyments of the prosperous business man consist in being able to comfortably provide for the many employes in his house or manufactory. In doing this he is fulfilling his obligation to society; he becomes a useful and honored citizen; business to him is a that 'by faith Enoch was translated, ne I pleasure; he enjoys his successes, and I thought I would try it on Horace." when they are fairly won, because he Saved by an Elephant.

An "old showman" tells the following exciting story of his experience when connected with a well-known menagerie during an engagement at Smithland, Kentucky. "After the exhibition was over," he says, "I passed into the menagerie to talk to the watchman. From some cause he was absent from his post, and I walked across the amphitheatre toward the elephant, to give him an apple, for we were the best of friends. He was one of the largest elephants I ever saw, and was as goodnatured as he was large. I was about half across the ring when I heard a growl, and looking around, saw to my horror one of the lions out of his cage and approaching me in a crouching manner, ready for a spring. I thought of a thousand things in a moment, and among them I must have regretted perpetrating so many old, worn-out jokes at the performance that night. I had sufficient presence of mind to realize my dangerous situation, and to know that it required the utmost caution to extricate myself from it. One hasty motion on my part and I would be in the jaws of the monster. I felt that my only hope was the elephant, if I could reach him, but he was chained by the foot, and could not reach me.

"Nearer and nearer came the lion, waving his tail in a manner that meant business. If I turned my back, he would spring; if I took my eyes from him, I was lost. It was a terrible mo-ment. I glided backwards swiftly as I dared. I had another fear. I feared stumbling backwards, and I knew if did fall I would never rise, but where I fell I would make a meal for that

"As I neared the elephant I saw that the lion understood my movements, and fearing he would be balked of his prey, hope, and that was to rush with all my speed to the elephant. I think I must have jumped twenty feet when I turned, and I know the lion jumped thirty, but head. I only knew that I was saved."

Midnight in a Prison.

There is something very solemn in a large convict prison at midnight. A faint sound of healthy slumber comes from the cells where the convicts sleep. Perhaps there are a thousand, perhaps only five hundred, undergoing punishment; but whatever may be the number, one is conscious that nowhere else save going to say - that you will be different; in a convict prison could so many human but May and Nellie have told me time | beings sleep with so little to interrupt and again that no better husbands than the sense of calm repose. In the same number of people taken from the ord ary world, there would be slight sounds arising from nightmare following an indigestion-perhaps from some reminiscence troubling the conscience on question whether the strong steps taken example, if they have. And don't fret | for payment of that bill were not in the circumstances slightly harsh, or some other disturbing recollection; there might also be uneasy thoughts and dreams creative of restlessness. None of these troubles disturb the sleep of the habitual criminal. This is not because his conscience lies easy on him, but because he does not possess the article known to the rest of the world as a conscience. Hence he neither enjoys the satisfaction of its healthy and genial condition nor the troubles attending on its inflections, and it is with him essentially that the "Prayer for Indifference," by Greville, as it may be found in the old "Elegant Extracts," is granted .-Blackwood's Magazine,

Beat My Sheep.

A minister, rather given to such exercises, in a sermon had been flagellating his congregation, when an old man asked him, on going out if he would not preach from the text, "Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, 'Beat my sheep." "No, no!" said the pastor; "you are mistaken, my brother. He said, 'Feed my sheep.'" "Ah, did He," said the old man, with a searching look into the pastor's face. "I thought mebbe you read it, 'Beat my sheep!'" The pastor saw the point, and the Baptist Teacher that tells the story adds that that minister threw away the cudgel, and filled up his crib! Wrestling With Classic Texts.

The story of the circus man who paid a collegian $10 for providing "monohippic aggregation" as a properly im-pressive title for his show, and then died of a broken heart at the end of the season, when he learned the true meaning thereof, is a story which seems likely to enjoy continued popularity in the following form: "A Boston man had just been showing all the sights of that charming city to a New Yorker. OBITUARY.

MRS. ALVA P. RUSSELL.

Last night, at 10:30 o'clock, after a se vere illness of eleven days, of congestion of the brain, death claimed as its victim, Mrs. Maggie Russell, wife of Mr. Alva P. Russell, in the thirty-second year of her age. Mrs. Russell's long residence in Janesville, and her womanly disposition had won to her many true friends, who are sadly grieved at he sudden death. Besides her husband, she leaves two sons, Charles, aged twelve years, and Alva, aged nine; also, an only sister, Mrs. Fred Jackman, of Santa Barbara, California, who will deeply feel the sorrow of the sad taking away of a loving wife, a fond mother, and an affectionate sister. The funeral will be held at St. Mary's church (Catholic) on Sunday afternoon, Rev. Father Munich officiating. The remains will be taken from -The Guards' armory should be the house on North Bluff street near the Pember house, at one o'clock. Friends of the family are invited to be present.

The Search for Augusta Lucck. The drowning of little Augusta Lueck at the Monterey bridge, an account of which was published in yesterday's Gazette, does not seem to draw out that outward sympathy of our human nature that it should. The body has now been in the treacherous river over thirty hours, with no prospects of its immed i ate recovery. In fact, outside the public offer of the reward by Mayor Croft, and the grappling hooks and boats procured by City Marshal Hogan there seems to be no general effort made in the search for the unfortunate child. We visited Monterey at two o'clock this afternoon, and found, besides the father and a couple of German friends, only half a dozen young men engaged in the search, and they seemed at a loss what to do. There were as many more men and boys on the opposite bank spending their time in fishing, and were unconcerned as to the fate of the lost one in the river. This is not as it should be. Perhaps no one in particular is to be blamed. The family of Mr. Lueck's are comparatively strangers in city, but "Their child Croft says, as dear to them as any child in our community is to its parents," and one

Guards concert.

Macbeth is one of the greatest of all Shakespearean tragedies. It is a sublime piece of tragic business; and when the title role is put in such hands as Thomas W. Keene, the character becomes one of vast interest. Recently, Mr. Keene acted Macbeth in St. Paul, and the Pioneer Press, the following morning, gave the performance this notice;

"A powerful, vigourous and intensely realistic delineation of the bard's great character, Macbeth, was given by Thomas W. Keene at the Opera house last evening, and the cordial reception accorded the tragedian evidenced the strong hold he has taken on St. Paul's lovers of legitimate drama.

There is probably no character in Shakespeare's wonderful series of productions that contains so many conflicting elements as Macbeth. The temptation to seize the crown of Duncan, urged on by ambition and the wiles of Lady Mac--Frank Howard and Thomas King beth, the strong conflict between conlatter's victory, and later on, the pangs of wonderful possession of physical bravery are all accurately and vividly depicted in Mr. Keene's enactment. Possessing a magnificent physique, Mr. Keene has in this respect a great advantage over Booth and Barrett and to rare elocutionary power adds intelligence and grace of action. In the pantomimes of his grief and horror, Mr. Keene at times exercises a magnetic influence over his audience that carries them fairly into the realism of his character and surrounding atmos-

Whitford, left to-day for his home in Milton. His report for 1881 upon which he has been laboring diligently for several months, will be issued to the public in a few days. Under the new law, changing the time for district and county school officers to make their reports, upon which the State report is wholly founded, State Superintendents can herearter get out their reports by the end of the year. During his several years' residence in this city, Prof. Whitord has made many warm friends, who will be loth to see him depart." The Pharmaceutical Board.

The State Board of Pharmacy met at Madison yesterday for the first time. T. H. Spence, of La Crosse, was elected ville, for Secretary. The matter of organization took up most of the day, and the board adjourned last evening to meet at Janesville, May 23d, at which time they will act on applications for certificates, under the new law, examination of candi. dates, and so on.

THE Guards give another of their worthy concerts, this evening. When the admission is only 15 cents to such concerts they ought to have crowded houses.

Mrs. Lake's Funeral.

A telegram received this morning from Mr. H. W. Lake, dated at Independence, says that he will leave that place at six o'clock this evening with the remains of his wife, and will reach Janesville tomorrow. It is not known at this writing whether he will come over the Milwaukee & St. Paul, by the way of Prairie du Chien and Milton Junction, or over the Illinois Central by way of Dubuque and Freeport. The funeral will take place at the nome of Mr. and Mrs. Veeder on Sunday, and the Rev. D. F. Davies, pastor of the Congregational church, will officiate. Due notice of the time will be given. It appears from late dispatches Mr. Lake that received at Chicago Mr. Veeder's telegram yesterday breaking the sad news to him of the death of his wife, and at once started for Independence reaching there at ten o'clock last night.

the License Quistion.

To the Editor.

What will our incoming council do in reference to the subject of license for the sale of intoxicating liquors? This ques. tion may be readily answered in one aspect of the case, at least. The new council will license the traffic for the ensuing year. No issue, adverse to this step, was made in the choice of mayor or aldermen. It is, however, well known, that a large, respectable and growing class of voters in the city are decidedly of the opinion that the traffic in question is a very serious evil, and that as such it ought not to be licensed. The opinions of these are not to be sneered at. And yet, as we have more than hinted, it is probably a foregone conclusion that their honestly entertained views are not to govern the council in its treatment of this subject.

Shall we then go on in the old ruts of the past, or shall an effort be made to find out some better method of dealing with this vexed question of liquor selling? Our city council has always favored low license; and the average number of saloons for the past few years has fallen but little short of fifty. Would it not be wise to raise the price of license? -say to $500, if this is allowable by the new city charter, and then grant the privlege of sale to but a small and hold these strictly accountable to the law, making the first violation a complete forfeiture of the right to sell. The city number of applicants, not exceed ten, of Beloit has agreed upon $300 as the price of license; and many of the Illinois cities, notably Elgin and Aurora, put the heense at $500. And the Chicago Journal admits that the high license system is meeting with favorable results. Several of our prominent citizens have ex-THERE being no sickness at the Blind pressed the wish, if license is to be grant. ed, that the high-priced system be adopt AN OLD CITIZEN.

Janesville, April 18, 1882.

Twenty-five Dollars Reward. To the citizens of Janesville:

Intelligence having reached me late in the afternoon of yesterday, of the death by drowning of a child of August Lueck, a German residing in the Fifth ward, I find the family has been living in the city one year, and came almost direct from Germany. Their acquaintances are limited, but their child is as dear to them as any child in our community is to its parents, and "a friend in need is a friend indeed." I would, therefore, ask the assistance of any and all who have an hour or more to spare in searching for the body; and I hereby offer a reward of $25 to any person who shall find the body of Augusta Lueck.
